

Abstract of the Disclosure

A cellular phone includes a plurality of wireless communication units, a memory unit, and a control unit controlling the plurality of wireless communication units and the memory unit. The plurality of wireless communication units are used for operating in a plurality of communication modes, respectively. The memory unit stores a history data which indicates history of used communication modes. The control unit selects one communication mode from the plurality of communication modes based on the history data.